The Girl from the Song

Romance

Eric is a young aspiring musician who lives in a London campus.

One night, while practicing with his guitar, a shoe drops from a tree and he meets Jo, an impulsive, fun, beautiful girl who is sneaking out of his campus.

Opposites attract, inevitably they soon fall for each other. There is something specially intoxicating about this girl and the way she is slowly getting Eric outside of his bubble.

One day, when everything seems to be going well, and Eric is confident about their relationship, Jo suddenly vanishes.

After trying to go on with his life the way it was before Jo, Eric embarks on the journey to find her and decides to travel to the Festival in the middle of the Nevada desert that she had previously told him about: Burning Man.

THE GIRL FROM THE SONG is a journey into the crazy things we do for love and how sometimes our human flaws get in the way.

Berlin Syndrome

Thriller

While holidaying in Berlin, Australian photojournalist Clare meets Andi, a charismatic local man and there is an instant attraction between them. A night of passion ensues.

But what initially appears to be the start of a romance suddenly takes an unexpected and sinister turn when Clare wakes up the following morning to discover Andi has left for work and locked her in his apartment. An easy mistake to make, of course, except Andi has no intention of letting her go again. Ever.

Porto

Romance, Drama

Jake and Mati are two outsiders in the Portuguese city of Porto who once experienced a brief connection. He's an American loner exiled from his family; she's a French student abroad with her professor lover. One day they see each other from a distance at an archeological site and then again at a train station and a café, where Jake works up the courage to speak to Mati for the first time and they embark on a night of carefree intimacy. This experience is looked at years later using fragments from Mati and Jake's lives apart, both of them still haunted by the powerful moments they shared. Working backwards and forwards with time, and alternating a narrow and wide visual canvas, Porto reveals the depths of a surprising encounter, eventually settling into the one unforgettable night when Mati and Jake chanced upon feelings of love and passion that they never thought were possible.

The Carer

Drama, Comedy

When Dorottya, an ambitious young Hungarian actress, takes on the unenviable job as carer of the once great stage actor Sir Michael Gifford, the two instantly clash. He's a sorry-for-himself, grumpy old has-been, and she is stubborn, standing up to him, as no one else dares. To the surprise of both, conflict is exactly what they need. Fueled by quarrels and a mutual love of Shakespeare, their relationship sparks and each finds the other an inspiration. Unfortunately, this symbiosis arouses the jealousy of Sir Michael's daughter, Sophia, and his faithful ex-lover, Milly. When Sir Michael is offered a Lifetime Achievement Award, Dorottya encourages the sick old man to collect it in person. Incensed, Milly and Sophia strike, sacking Dorottya and cutting her off from all contact. Without each other, Dorottya and Sir Michael spiral downwards – only to rally at the end, defying their critics and ultimately, together, triumphing onstage.

Orson Welles: Shadows & Light

Documentary, Biography

2016: 70th anniversary of Citizen Kane

A legendary figure, the living myth of the creative artist, Orson Welles was the man who reinvented the language of theatre and cinema at the age of 24. He was a man of a thousand faces, continually appearing in new forms, revealing endlessly unseen facets. He was a moralist, a humanist, a Don Juan, a glutton, an American and a homeless exile, an actor, a film-maker, a comedian, a poet, and an eternal child prodigy seeking to return to a state of grace. A child leading us into a maze of mirrors reflecting his talents, that he spins and twists as he pleases, never fully revealing what lies behind his imposing figure. This film is a journey into the heart of the man behind the legend.

Unseen Toronto

Documentary, Travel, Lifestyle

'Unseen Toronto' is a television series that explores the city's hidden secrets, and reveals cool, rarely seen spaces typically off-limits to the public. From a 'ghost' subway station few people know exist, to the hidden floor between the Elgin and Winter Garden Theatre, 'Unseen Toronto' brings its audience into the most fascinating yet rarely known spots in Toronto.

Visually rich, informative and entertaining, 'Unseen Toronto' is the first show to reveal what's inside the attic of Queen's Park; make it to the top of the Summerhill LCBO Clock Tower, and uncover a secret cell in the Don Jail no member of the public has ever seen before.

'Unseen Toronto' also explores such seldom seen locations as the Observation Deck of Commerce Court North (closed to the public since the 1970's), Lower Queen Subway Station, and the tunnels under the former Lakeshore Psychiatric Hospital.

Episode 1 Hiding Up Above

See what's hiding up above at the observation deck of Commerce Court North, the hidden attic of Queen's Park and a rare glimpse into the haunted Summerhill clock tower.

Episode 2 Hiding Down Below

Explore what's hiding down below in three of the city's most fascinating secret subterranean locations: Lower Queen Station, the Don Jail, and the former Lakeshore Psychiatric Hospital.

Episode 3 Hiding in Plain Sight

Find out what's hiding in plain sight in the hidden alleys of Kensington market; a cemetery on the side of the highway; and inside the Elgin and Winter Garden.

Beat Generation

Documentary

The Film tells the story of the great and long-lasting friendship between Jack Kerouac, Allen Ginsberg and William Burroughs that gave birth to the literary movement of the 'Beat Generation'. It all starts in New York in the early 50s when Kerouac decides to write an enormous novel about their common experience.

Then, it moves through San Francisco, Mexico City, Tangiers, Paris and ends some 15 years later with the successive publication of 'Howl' (Allen Ginsberg), 'On the Road' (Jack Kerouac) and 'Naked Lunch' (William Burroughs), three books which are each a manifesto in itself.

Girl Asleep

Drama, Family

Fifteen is going to turn a corner. It has to. The world is closing in on Greta Driscoll. On the cusp of turning fifteen she can't bear to leave her childhood, it contains all the things that give her comfort in this incomprehensible new world. She floats in a bubble of 'loserdom' with her only friend Elliott, until her parents throw her a surprise 15th birthday party and she's flung into a parallel place; a world that's weirdly erotic, a little bit violent and thoroughly ludicrous – only there can she find herself. Based on the critically acclaimed production by Windmill Theatre, GIRL ASLEEP is a journey into the absurd, scary and beautiful heart of the teenage mind.

Joe Cinque's Consolation

Crime, Drama

In early 1997 Anu Singh, a beautiful law student at the Australian National University, confides in friends that she plans to kill herself to put an end to a mysterious illness. With doctors unable or unwilling to help, Anu's engineer boyfriend, Joe Cinque, attempts to get to the bottom of her condition. But Anu's mental and emotional state disintegrate, and her plans grow more macabre and more public. As Joe begins to understand the true nature of their relationship, Anu blames him for her illness and vows revenge against him. After an elaborate farewell dinner party attended by friends, Anu drugs Joe with Rohypnol. Now under Anu's control, Joe's fate depends on their friends and colleagues intervening to save his life. Instead they gradually withdraw, unwilling to help or immobilized by doubt or disbelief. More than a day later, on the 26th of October 1997, Anu injects Joe with a lethal dose of heroin. Joe Cinque's Consolation is the adaptation of Helen Garner's best-selling account of these events: an examination of collective and individual responsibility, and a crime that shocked Australia.

The Blue Danube

Art, Culture, Music, Documentary

For the New Year's Concerts in Vienna, the story of the most popular pieces of music.

The Blue Danube is in itself the expression of the universe of the waltz. None other than The Blue Danube can embody the essence of the waltz so eloquently and precisely in form and spirit. But can this alone suffice to explain the worldwide success this waltz has met with?

Indeed not: the waltz is also popular for a certain amount of historical, diplomatic and political reasons.

A Craft in a Bag

Anthropological Documentary

Craftsmanship has always been one of Italy's strong points and a source of livelihood for many generations, both in Italy and abroad. Trades like that of the cobbler, the ice cream maker or the miller, are still practiced in the countryside and villages throughout the Lazio region.

In the aftermath of the Second World War, they were considered good working opportunities for Italian immigrants in South America.

The stories of those who practiced their craftsmanship in Italy and those of who put their trade in their suitcases and left, tell of a precious heritage that has been remained in the shadows for too long and now deserves to be rediscovered.

Invisible Cities

Documentary, Anthropological

Cities aren't always what they seem to be: traffic, chaos and pollution. Often the real face of the city lies hidden behind the scenes. The idea of this documentary was inspired by a book by Italo Calvino, in which he writes "the images of happy cities keep appearing and disappearing, hidden in the unhappy cities"; a kind of itinerary show of a choice of European cities where the invisible becomes visible.

“Invisible Cities” is an off-stage theatrical performance with the aim of turning everyday-life places into stages where the discovery of that particular place’s cultural identity can come to the fore and its inhabitants can express their creative energy. The project is based on the concept of coming together and sharing; it’s not only an artistic project but also an anthropological one which will wind its way through the courtyards and the squares of Rovereto in Italy, of Carouge in Switzerland, and of Holstebro in Denmark.

A Quiet Passion

Biography, Drama

A film based on the life and work of the great poet Emily Dickinson. She wrote a poem a day, but only a fraction of her output was published throughout her lifetime. She was extremely shy, but with a wry, lively sense of humor and loved to laugh or to be made to laugh. Her friendships were intense but it was within the family that she found her greatest happiness. Her life is one of quiet dignity. The poetry magnificent. All the terror and beauty of the world distilled down to the quintessence of meaning and expression. She is quite simply one of the world's greatest poets.

Hollywood Rewind

Entertainment, Biography, Documentary

Hollywood's biggest stars share their memories about their struggles, victories, and most memorable moments.

Episodic synopsis

Movie Award Memories – former Oscar winners and nominees detail the entire Academy Award experience – from the moment they are nominated, to the awkward moments at the ceremonies, to taking their statuette home. The show examines all the hilarious, touching, and downright odd things that happen surrounding this most famous awards show.

Actors Working - takes a look at the weird, bizarre, and often hilarious jobs that actors held before they were famous. Over sixty big name stars reveal what they did to earn a paycheck. They range from Harrison Ford working as a cook on a yacht, to Whoopi Goldberg doing make-up at a mortuary, to Julia Roberts selling shoes.

Struggling Actors - reveals the obstacles that today's biggest stars had to overcome in order to make it in Hollywood. The show features forty-five major stars detailing their wildest career roadblocks. They run the gambit from drama teachers who told them they lacked talent, to nightmare auditions where everything went wrong, to actors like Tom Cruise who were informed they weren't "good looking enough." Celebrities featured in the show include Johnny Depp, Harrison Ford, Sandra Bullock, Julia Roberts, George Clooney, Tom Hanks, and Arnold Schwarzenegger.

At the Beginning - This episode features Hollywood's biggest stars in some of their earliest interviews as they describe their careers at the very beginning – before they became household names.

Fame Game Part 1 - This 2-part (but which can stand-alone) show delves into what happens when an actor suddenly achieves fame. From walking into that first autograph swarm and dealing with pushy agents, to wild encounters with fans and being pursued by the paparazzi.

Fame Game Part 2 - Part 2 continues the theme of part 1, but also deal extensively with the funny side of fame. (including being asked for autographs in the restroom, and being trapped on an airplane with persistent fans.)

Scottish Mussel

Comedy

Ritchie is Glaswegian chancer with low hopes and no prospects. Disillusioned with city-life, he goes undercover at a Highland conservation centre to make his fortune as an illegal pearl fisher with the help of his two hapless and accident-prone mates, Danny and Fraser.

Here he meets Beth, a pretty English conservationist passionate about saving endangered mussels from the clutches of pearl thieves in the Scottish Highlands.

Falling for her instantly, Ritchie must beat off competition in the form of Highland Ranger Ethan, a smooth-talking American Adonis convinced that Beth can't resist his charms forever.

After the success of pearl fishing attracts the unwanted attentions of old-school Glaswegian mobster Gavin and his work at the centre leads him to question his true motivations, Ritchie must risk life and limb to save the Highlands from ecological disaster and win Beth's heart.

Pan! Our Music Odyssey

Documentary, Drama

During World War II in Trinidad & Tobago, underprivileged urban gangs stole oil drums to create a new musical instrument. This striking and colorful documentary re-enacts pivotal moments in the history of pan music from the banning of slave drum dances in 1820. Although steelbands have since evolved in every corner of the planet, Trinidad remains the Mecca, where each year philharmonic orchestras of over 100 musicians, from all over the world, compete for the Panorama event. This film is the story of men and women who staked all on their art, and of French, Japanese and Americans, whose passion and daring has drawn them to the world championships. It is a global human adventure out of the ordinary. Their stories are interlaced with re-enactments of the rags-to-riches tale of the steelband movement, which was born into poverty and violence but climbed to the highest levels of social and artistic acceptance without losing its life-or-death urgency. The dramatizations provide a continuous narrative, which focusing on a pivotal moment in the history of pan between 1947 and 1951. A 19-year-old man nicknamed Goldteeth and his brother steal two oil drums to make their instruments, rather than the traditionally smaller paint cans. Their flight from the police and battles with the ferocious rival band, Red Army, leads them to finally sublimate this warfare into a peaceful musical battle. Discover the most colorful of music histories in this brand new film.

The Great Invisible

Documentary

On April 20, 2010, communities throughout the Gulf Coast of the United States were devastated by the explosion of the Deepwater Horizon, a state-of-the-art, offshore oil-drilling rig operated by BP in the Gulf of Mexico. The blast killed 11 of the rig's 126 crewmembers and injured many more, setting off a fireball that could be seen 35 miles away. After two days ablaze, the Deepwater Horizon sank, causing the largest offshore oil spill in American history. The spill flowed unabated for almost three months, dumping hundreds of millions of gallons of oil in the ocean, shutting down the local fishing industry, polluting the fragile ecosystem and raising serious questions about the safety of continued offshore drilling. Interweaving personal stories with insight from industry insiders and news footage of the disaster and its aftermath, Brown creates an intimate and emotional look at the many people still haunted by the Deepwater Horizon explosion long after the story has faded from the front page. The first comprehensive overview of the incident and its aftermath, The Great Invisible brings a new and unique perspective to the ongoing tension between the haves and the have-nots, exploring the crisis through the eyes of oil-industry executives, survivors, and local residents who are left to pick up the pieces while the world moves on.

Beyond The Known World

Drama

When 19 year old Eva fails to return home to New Zealand from India, her estranged parents, Carl and Julie, must reunite to find her. Their journey takes them from coastal Auckland, to the chaos of New Delhi, and on to idyllic Himalayan villages, where hash-smoking ex-pats are tight-lipped and local police offer little help.

Desperate to find Eva, Carl's misreading of the local culture leads to a young woman being imprisoned. Old wounds and betrayals between husband, wife and daughter are exposed, and Carl begins to realize that he may be responsible for driving Eva away.

Believing Eva has died in the mountains, Carl despairs, but Julie's refusal to stop searching eventually proves that sometimes blind faith is better than having none at all, and that to find their daughter these two people must first rediscover each other.

Into The Forest

Drama

In the not-too-distant future, two ambitious young women, Nell and Eva, live with their father in a lovely but run-down home up in the mountains somewhere on the West Coast. Suddenly the power goes out; no one knows why. No electricity, no gasoline. Their solar power system isn't working. Over the following days, the radio reports a thousand theories: technical breakdowns, terrorism, disease and uncontrolled violence across the continent. Then, one day, the radio stops broadcasting. Absolute silence. Step by ominous step, everything that Nell, a would-be academic, and Eva, a hard working contemporary dancer, have come to rely on is stripped away: parental protection, information, food, safety, friends, lovers, music -- all gone. They are faced with a world where rumor is the only guide, trust is a scarce commodity, gas is king and loneliness is excruciating. To battle starvation, invasion and despair, Nell and Eva fall deeper into a primitive life that tests their endurance and bond. Ultimately, the sisters must work together to survive and learn to discover what the earth will provide. They find comfort in cherishing the memories of the happy family life they once shared. The natural world, art & memory sustain them. But for how long?

Stay Awhile

Documentary, Music

While their contemporaries were singing anthems about “war machines and ghetto machines” they were offering an alternative to rebellion with their songs of unabashed romance, commitment, and hope. In the hands of millions of record buyers around the world was their name: The Bells.

Their musical chemistry was formidable: two sisters, Ann and Jacki, possessed sweet voices that harmonized beautifully. Cliff's gruff, deep lead vocals were a perfect complement. Romantic entanglements, first between Jacki and Cliff, followed by the marriage of Cliff to Ann, reflected their youth and naiveté when faced with life on the road.

Told from the perspective of Cliff and Ann's youngest daughter, the film's director and writer Jessica Edwards, Stay Awhile is a film that transcends the simple dream of life in a band, exposing the real emotional dynamics between the men and women who were part of it. Evoking love, fortune, failure and the ties that bond in a document of unforgettable moments, Stay Awhile will stir audiences to question what, and who, we are products of.

The Last Straw

Drama, Family, Christmas

It's Christmas break at the McDonald house, but silent nights—and days—are nowhere to be found. With the children's constant bickering, pretty packages and a sweet-smelling tree don't come close to filling the McDonald home with the true spirit of the first Christmas. Then Mom remembers an old tradition of building a soft bed for Baby Jesus one straw at a time. Each time someone secretly does something nice for another family member, he or she gets to add a single straw to the manger. Soon the children's quarreling and negative feelings subside and the homemade crib is overflowing. But for one family member, a required act of kindness becomes more that he can take. Inspired by a true story and filled with both heart and humor, "The Last Straw" may forever change the way your family celebrates Christmas.

Cowboy Christmas

Documentary, Sport

Rodeos are woven into the cultural fabric of the American West and are held in small towns and bustling cities from Arizona to North Dakota, and beyond. Professional rodeo cowboys travel a year-long circuit of these rodeos, participating in a 150 year-old tradition, hoping to grab their share of fame and fortune. Cowboy Christmas is a 75-minute documentary following four of these modern-day cowboys as they drive for miles and miles to get a seconds-long chance at their dream. In the two weeks leading up to Independence Day-the Fourth of July, there are over 30 rodeos in 19 states, with a combined purse of over $3million. Because a rider can win a lot of money, these two weeks are informally and affectionately dubbed Cowboy Christmas. The documentary follows four cowboys making this trip, with each traveling over 2000 miles in eight days, in pickup trucks pulling trailers hauling horses, feed, other cowboys, and lots of desire to win. These cowboys are steer wrestlers who jump from a running horse to a running steer and wrestle it to the ground. The cowboys talk about injuries, driving, care for horses, and money: losing it, winning it and just breaking even. They describe strategy, camaraderie, and the mental game they play to win. And they wrestle steers-from Santa Fe, New Mexico to Oakley, Utah, and places in between. They win, they lose, and their passion for rodeo never wanes. They are cowboys, that most American icon, living their dreams, following the tradition of Western life, while risking broken bones, lost personal relationships and overdrawn bank accounts as they go down the road to the next arena, the next steer, their next chance at the American Dream.

The Spirit of the Place: China

Travel

This film about China, The Spirit of the Place, presents viewers one of the most beautiful natural places of the country. Beginning in pacifying rafting on the famous Li river among the poetic mountains that make it possible to feel like being in the paintings of the great Chinese painters or in the mountains, which seem to have been drawn by the great Chinese artists. Then, like in the film footage it takes viewers back in time showing the fishermen fishing in the traditional way, by hand, with cormorants on a background of a pink dawn. Then we climb into the mountains to walk among the towering cliffs and capture the imagination. Park Zhangjiajie inspired James Cameron to create the look of the planet from the movie Avatar. Fogs, creeping through the gorges, majestic cliffs that rise up to heavens, and lush forests really make the audience believe that Pandora is located in China. Next, a colorful show on the water - Lysantsze in the city Yangshuo, involving 600 artists. Finally, a walk through the Forbidden City, the Great Wall and a visit to the famous Terracotta Army.

It's Already Tomorrow In Hong Kong

Comedy, Romance

In this sparkling romance, Ruby, a Chinese American toy designer from LA, visits Hong Kong for the first time on business. Finding herself stranded, she meets Josh, an American expat who shows her the city. Meandering through nighttime streets pulsing with energy and possibility, they fall into a winding and carefree conversation, buoyed by an undeniable attraction. Just as things start to look promising romantically for the pair, the night is stopped short by a surprising revelation.

A year later, Josh and Ruby run into each other on the ferry from Hong Kong to Kowloon. Ruby is now living in Hong Kong full time. Josh, partially influenced by Ruby's advice a year prior, has quit his finance job to write full time. After finding out that they're both with someone else now, they make amends and end up spending all night hanging out in Kowloon - from bargaining at the Temple Street Market to an impromptu visit to the bird fortune teller. By the time Josh and Ruby get to an underground music club, they can no longer hide their feelings for each other. But when the opportunity presents itself at the end of the night, will either of them dare to make the next move and betray the person they're with?

As effervescent as a perfect first date, this charming walk and talk romance takes full advantage of the chemistry of its leads, the playfulness of their exchanges, and the magical landscape that is Hong Kong at night.

4 Minute Mile

Drama

A sensitively observed drama unfolds when a Seattle high school student trying to run from his problems meets an old man who's locked himself away to hide from his own, and find that they're just the solution the other needs. Drew (Kelly Blatz) is about to graduate from school, but the dire economic straits of his broken family have set a fence around his horizons. Drew seems destined to remain stuck in his rough neighborhood, following his older brother's downward spiral into drugs and violence. But he does have one advantage on his side: a runner's body, however untrained and in need of discipline. His efforts at track and field glory catch the eye of neighbor Coleman (Richard Jenkins), a former coach who's bitter over past regrets. Admiration for Drew's potential softens Coleman's hardened reserve, and he offers the young man guidance on achieving his dreams on and off the track. Deftly pairing up-and-comer Blatz with veteran actors Jenkins and Kim Basinger in the role of Drew's mother, 4 Minute Mile offers an inspirational message to appeal to all audiences, even as its shot-in-Seattle locations offer a particular attraction for homegrown crowds.
