

Reviews BLAME

Cruel Intentions meets Alpha Dogs

A clever story about “revenge” that goes horribly wrong with a major twist in the end. A teacher is targeted after a student commits suicide. Her family and friends immediately held the teacher responsible and decided to take the law in their own hands. Follow their mistakes and emotional madness and feel their despair after their final actions.

Jovita

Esther

Ignorance and emotional rashness are usually the cause of crime. Sometimes it is too late to find the truth and justice. You will definitely want to know the truth and imagine what is the twist at the end of this story.

A tense, edge of your seat, and what is the next move coming type movie. Five friends drive out to a remote house of a former teacher to exact revenge. The reason why slowly unravels through brilliant acting and smooth transitions throughout the scenes, actors, and a strong story line. The ending is a wonderful continuation of the first line of this review.

Jackie

Edwin

I know at the very beginning there must be a twist where the well-dressed gang decides to abort the action and the story would be unfolded. The building of tension when the courier delivery comes the first and the second time gives great intensity to the build-up. The story is well structured and I suspect Blame would also be a great piece to be made into a stage drama, if not done before.

A group of best friends, an unsuccessful conspiracy after a funeral ceremony. The anger, conflict behind friendship. A thriller type of movie that you never know until the end.

Eric

BLAME

Director: Michael Henry

Cast: Sophie Lowe (Beautiful Kate, Road Kill)

Kestie Morassi (Wolf Creek, Underbelly, (upcoming) My Wedding Party)

Damian de Montemas (Underbelly)

Ashley Zukerman (The Pacific)

Simon Stone (The Balibo Conspiracy)

Mark Leonard Winter (The Balibo Conspiracy)

Language: English Subtitle: Traditional Chinese

Run Time: 90minutes (Theatrical) /

Rating: M-Australia, PG-13-MPAA

Theatrical Release: June 2011 | Australia (Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Perth, Adelaide), Canada, US, UK, France, Central Europe, China, Turkey, and more to be announced.

Inflight Release: August 2011 | Territories: Worldwide excluding Australia and New Zealand.

an encore experience